Lives Brought to Life

Jean Kanzinger, past attendee of the Conference on Poetry and Teaching, as well as current Teacher Consultant to The Frost Place, has shared with CavanKerry Press some her techniques and ideas on how to teach poetry to kindergarten-level students.

"Shortly after returning from the Conference on Poetry & Teaching at The Frost Place in Franconia, NH in June 2010, my younger daughter was assigned to Lisa's class. My daughter told her teacher about my trip and mentioned that I went to Robert Frost's house where Robert Frost taught me about poetry. Whatever else can be said about that claim, it's certainly a great way to have someone ask about the teaching conference at The Frost Place. Lisa, also a poetry enthusiast, immediately asked if we could plan a poetry unit together."
